Negro Frightened a Child to Death.

Summerville, N. J., Dispatch.

An old negress known as Jennie has long been a bugaboo to the children of Raritan. She goes from door to door begging for food. Children run away at her approach and hide until she is out of sight. On Friday evening she asked for food at the house of Charles Silbert, a jeweler. When Mr. Silbert's three-year-old daughter saw the negress she became so frightened that she went into convulsions. The convulsions continued until Saturday morning, when the little girl died of exhaustion.

We Will Have a Juke.

Asheville Gazette.

The village of Greensboro is in a day or two to have within its borders a real, live English lord. He is to be on the stage, too; so that everybody can see him who has the price. The Greensboro papers are not nearly so excited about the coming of me lud as is seemly and appropriate. If they are trying to throw a bluff that that sort of thing is an every-day occurrence, they are hereby notified that it doesn't go. Why Asheville people do not more generally patronize the theater is a standing question. Perhaps a juke might drag them out.

The meeting last night was the best since the services began. The pastor preached from the text: "Be sure your sins will find you out." There have been quite a number converted since the meeting began and the church has been wonderfully revived. Preaching at 7.30 tonight.

The sub-commiittee of the educational committee of the Legislature which was to have visited the Normal and Industrial College this evening and tomorrow, will not come yet, owing to press of work which demands their presence in Raleigh. STATE DIVORCE LAWS MODIFIED

HOUSE RE-ENACTS THE OLD LAW WITHOUT AMENDMENT.

A Long Discussion in the House in Which Mr. McLean Reads the Scriptures.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb. 7.—When the bill in the Senate chartering the South Western Railway came up, Senator Glenn said the bill gave the road the right to start anywhere and go anywhere.

The bill was re-referred.

Stringfield, Democrat of the 23d District, was given the seat upon the report of the election committee.

In the House.

The bill repealing all divorce laws enacted since 1887 was the special order today, and occasioned a long argument.

McLean read a quotation from the Bible as his argument, and strongly opposed divorce.

Craige offered an amendment making three years of absolute abandonment a cause for divorce, and warmly supported it.

It was shown that Wake, Granville, Wayne and Edgecombe had granted 341 divorces in the past two years.

Sims of Wake, offered as a substitute, making the law as it was in the code, and striking out abandonment. The substitute was adopted and passed its readings.

Then an amendment was passed, providing that all persons divorced under recent laws can remarry upon getting the proper certificate.

The bill to allow the penitentiary to make fertilizer was reported favorably and made the special order for Thursday.

Judge Connor's Position.

The Raleigh Post and the other papers this morning publish the following relative to Judge Connor's position on the impeachment proceedings:

The Judiciary Committee of the House will meet this afternoon to consider the impeachment proceedings against two of the Supreme Court judges.

A decision may be reached tonight, and if this is the case the matter will be reported to the House tomorrow. In any event there will be two reports—one in favor of impeachment and the other against.

Judge Connor, who has taken a position against impeachment, was seen last night and stated his position with reference to this matter.

Judge Connor said that the word "censure" or "reprimand" was not used by him in connection with the impeachment of the judges. That neither of these words were appropriate to be used by one department of the government towards another. That he thought it entirely proper when, in the judgment of one of the co-ordinate departments of the government, another had trespassed upon its domain or disturbed the constitutional balance, to say so in respectful but unmistakable terms. That this was not as a rebuke or reprimand, but calling the attention of the citizens to the danger of permitting the integrity of their constitutional guarantees to be attacked. That this course was warranted by precedent and entirely consistent with a due regard for the relative rights of those discharging their duties pertaining to the several departments. He regretted that the use of these words had been ascribed to him. His remarks had been made in the committee room, to which no newspaper man was admitted.

Miss Castello.

Bernice Castello, the great dramatic reader, impersonator and vocalist, and her company, will give one of her beautiful entertainments at the Academy of Music next Tuesday, Feb. 12th., for the benefit of the two Knights of Pythias lodges of Greensboro, to assist them in raising funds to to entertain the Grand Lodge which meets in Greensboro April next.

A ROYAL WEDDING IN HOLLAND.

The Queen Married to the Duke of Saxe Weimar—The Street of The Hague Are Crowded as Never Before—The Wonderful Gown Which the Young Queen Wore.

Special to The Telegram.

The Hague, Feb. 7.—The marriage of Queen Wilhelmina to the Grand Duke Henry of Saxe Weimar took place today. Elaborate preparations were made for the long expected event. The scene of the wedding ceremony, the stately and historic Royal Cathedral, scarcely held all the royalties and dignitaries assembled to witness the event. Holland's youthful Queen is one of the richest sovereigns of all Europe, and it is said she has settled on her husband the sum of $5,000 000, the income of which is to be at his entire disposal. The groom is the youngest son of Frederick Francis II., Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who died in 1883.

Never was there such crowds in the streets. All Holland seems here. Everybody is happy. The ministers of Justice and the marriage witnesses assembled at 11:30 in the white room of the palace. The civil marriage was performed only before the court and other witnesses who are immediate relatives. The Queen's procession then moved to the church where the religious ceremony was performed. The procession then returned to the palace for luncheon.

The wedding gown is a thing of beauty and splendor as befits a Queen. Woven in Lyons and cut in Paris, it was brought home to be embroidered in the Art Schools of Amsterdam, and then returned to Paris to be made. The front of the gown is made of lace flowers. The train and bodice are of silver brocade embroidered richly in silver threads and spangles. The pattern represents oranges and orange flowers.

The wedding gifts received cannot be enumerated here, but one deserves special mention. It is a silver thimble designed and manufactured in Paris, the gift of Oom Paul Kruger.

Why Mrs. Faircloth Dissented.

Goldsboro Argus.

Owing to the public character of some of its bequests, the will of Judge Faircloth has assumed somewhat of a public nature. It may not, therefore, be uninteresting to let the public know the causes that led Mrs. Faircloth to dissent therefrom. We learn that her whole individual estate, which was considerable, went to swell that of the Judge's; that the property devised to her, in payment for hers, was not of more than one-third its value; that owing to her advanced age and feeble health, the property left her for her life was very undesirable, to say nothing of her uncertain tenure; that for a man with a net income of from $5,000 to $8,000, $500 is thought to be an inadequate year's support, especially when the law will allow her as much as one-half. She has no other property, and would, under the will, have nothing that she could dispose of as her own, except the law building, worth from $5,000 to $7,000. The dissent is not, nor was it intended to be any reflection upon the memory of her deceased husband; but is the simple exercise of an election wisely left to her by the law.

NEW CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS.

News and Observer.

One of the most important matters that will come before the present General Assembly, and certainly one that will create much interest and discussion will be a redistricting of the State for the election of Congressmen.

Already leaders of both House and Senate, as well as a large number of would-be candidates, are at work hewing out ten districts, each doing the work according to his own ideas of what is best for his party or most advantageous to his own political interests. Some of these plans are fantastic and shoestringly; others lay the State off almost by rule and square. Then there are some happy mediums between these two extremes.

The first bill providing for a redistricting of the State was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Arrington.

It is as follows:

An act to apportion to several congressional districts.

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact:

Section 1. That for the purpose of selecting representatives in the Congress of the United States, the State of North Carolina shall be divided into ten districts as follows:

1st. Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Carteret, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Hertford, Hyde, Northampton, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Tyrrell and Washington.

2nd. Edgecombe, Greene, Halifax, Lenoir, Martin, Pitt, Wayne and Wilson.

3rd. Brunswick, Bladen, Columbus, Craven, Duplin, Jones, New Hanover, Onslow, Pender and Sampson.

4th. Franklin, Granville, Johnston, Nash, Vance, Wake and Warren.

5th. Alamance, Caswell, Chatham, Durham, Guilford, Orange, Person and Rockingham.

6th. Anson, Cumberland, Harnett, Montgomery, Moore, Randolph, Richmond, Robeson and Scotland.

7th. Cabarrus, Davie, Davidson, Mecklenburg, Rowan, Stanly and Union.

8th. Alleghany, Ashe, Forsyth, Mitchell, Stokes, Surry, Wilkes, Watauga, Yadkin and Yancey.

9th. Alexander, Catawba, Burke, Caldwell, Cleveland, Gaston, Iredell, Lincoln and Rutherford.

10th. Buncombe, Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, McDowell, Madison, Polk, Swain, Macon and Transylvania.

It is claimed by some who have examined this bill and who are acquainted with the political condition of the State that it makes two districts that may be Republican.

One of the brightest members of the House and likewise one of the best politicians in the State, has also formulated a bill for a redistricting of the State.

"It is," he explained, "just my idea of how the ten districts could be formed so as to make them as Democratic, and at the same time about equal it population."

The formation of his proposed districts is as follows:

First district—Take out Carteret county and leave it otherwise as it is now.

Second district—Take out of the present district the counties of Wayne, Greene and Lenoir and add to it Vance and Granville.

Third district—To be composed of Wayne, Greene, Lenoir, Carteret, Onslow, Craven, Jones, Duplin, Pender and Sampson.

Fourth district—To be composed of New Hanover, Brunswick, Columbus, Bladen, Robeson, Cumberland, Harnett and Moore.

Fifth district—The present fourth district with Vance county taken out.

Sixth district—The present fifth district with Vance county taken out.

Seventh district—To be composed of Richmond, Scotland, Montgomery, Stanly, Rowan, Davidson, Davie, Forsyth, Yadkin and Surry.

Eighth district—To be composed of Anson, Union, Cabarrus, Iredell, Alexander, Wilkes, Caldwell, Watauga, Ashe and Alleghany.

Ninth district—To be composed of Mecklenburg, Gaston, Lincoln, Catawba, Burke, Mitchell, Yancey and Madison.

Tenth district—The present ninth district with Madison and Yarcey left out and Cleveland put in.

"This plan would make all the ten districts Democratic," said the gentleman who proposed it. "The smallest Democratic majority in them, as shown by the vote for Governor Aycock, will be in the ninth, 2,114. The next lowest is the sixth, 2,400; next lowest the eighth and tenth, 2,500, and all the others 4,000."

Another plan proposed is to make the counties between the two mountain ranges in the west a district which will be Republican beyond all question. This bill enables the rest of the State to be divided up into nine districts that will be easily Democratic. This plan, however, is being vigorously opposed by the Democrats residing in the proposed Republican district and for this and other reasons it has met with small favor among members of the General Assembly.

SELLS TO MORGAN.

Deal for Controlling Interest in the Carnegie Company.

New York, Feb. 6.—The Tribune today said:

"Negotiations for the sale of Andrew Carnegie's controlling interest in the stock of the Carnegie Company was brought to a successful conclusion on Monday, J. Piermont Morgan and his associates being the purchasers The terms of the transaction cannot at this time be announced, but the transaction is a colossal one, rivaling the recent change of control of the Southern Pacific, when that property passed to the hands of the Union Pacific interests. Mr. Carnegie held nearly 54 per cent of the $160,000,000 of the Carnegie Company. This stock has not been listed on any stock exchange, but $1,500 was recently paid for a $1,000 share in the Carnegie Company.

"Assuming that Mr. Carnegie has disposed of his holdings at par, he will receive fully $85,000,000 for his interest, while at the same time he will retain his 53 or 54 per cent interest in the $160,000,000 bond issue of the Carnegie Company. The object aimed at by Mr. Morgan and the interests allied with him when treating with Mr. Carnegie was the assurance of an enduring pace in the steel industry of the United States, and this condition is now believed to have been obtained."

The Mail and Express says: "President Schwab, of the Carnegie Steel Company, came on from Pittsburg today and had a conference this morning, it was reported at Mr. Carnegie's house.

"On what may be considered the highest authority on this subject, it may be stated that Mr. Carnegie is anxious to retire from active business pursuits, and has arranged to do so at an early date."

Rice Heirs Will Appear.

Special to The Telegram.

New York, Feb. 7.—Today the Probate Court of this city will take action in regard to the lately discovered heirs of millionaire Rice, who died under suspicious circumstances September 23rd last. The story of the discovery of these heirs in Stone county, Mo., reads like a romance. The names of the alleged heirs are B. F. Rice, Bird Rice and Mrs. Lottie Clarke, all living in the same neighborhood and children of Col. David Rice, who died in 1898. This Col. David Rice was a brother of millionaire William Rice. The brothers were in business together, in Texas, years ago, but an estrangement took place and they separated. Soon after David lost his property and was destitute at the time of his death. He never spoke of his brother William and his children knew nothing of the existence of their rich uncle until informed by an attorney from this city. The heirs named above appear under the first will of William Rice.

War on Cigarettes.

Special to The Telegram.

New York, Feb. 7.—Another railroad has decided to place the ban upon cigarette smoking. Following the example of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the conservative New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has issued the fiat that the cigarette smoker must go. This anti-cigarette movement on the part of the railroads is one of business not sentiment. Smoking has been found to lead to color blindness and this leads to a wrong reading of the signals, a matter of great importance in railroading. The western roads are determined to enforce the rule strictly and no one will be employed in any capacity who is addicted to the habit.

I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it. They know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7

STREET RAILWAYS.

The construction and operation of street car systems has become one of the big businesses of the country. The subject has assumed considerable interest among the writers on economics. This interest is justified by the importance of the subject. Quick, adequate and cheap transportation has become one of the prime necessities of modern life and is becoming more important with the growth of segregated populations. So the question of street railways is very vital to the people. Economic thought has come to the position that it is sound public policy for cities to own their own lines, if it be necessary in specific cases, to obtain the best results. The Chicago Board of Aldermen have had a special commission investigating the subject, and the Aldermen have reported the findings of the commission to the Legislature as the basis for a bill. The subject is daily growing in importance in the South, and hence we give the outlined report of the commission as being of especial interest. It is:

1. Local control as against State control.

2. Short-time franchises. (Already established, the present law limiting grants to twenty years.)

3. The recognition of the street railway business as a natural monopoly. The commission recommends that all franchises be made to expire together, so as to give the city a free hand.

4 The authorizing of cities to own and operate their street railways. "The city," says the report, "may not deem it expedient to exercise this power, but with such a power in reserve the city would be in a position to make much better terms with private corporations."

5. A popular referendum upon important questions of street railway policy when ten per cent. of the voters petition therefor. (Even when unexercised, this power on the part of the general public would be a protection against corrupt grants.)

6. The securing of an uninterrupted street railway service by requiring the companies receiving grants to submit all labor disputes to arbitration.

As a comment upon these positions we find these sentences in The Outlook: "What the commission has to say about municipal ownership is one of many illustrations of the advance of public sentiment on this question during the past fifteen years. It does not take a doctrinaire attitude in favor of municipal ownership under all circumstances, and it even opposes municipal operation of street railways under the present circumstances in Chicago. But it treats the whole matter as one to be settled by the public sense of what the public welfare demands, and not by the cry-words of 'individualism' or 'socialism.'"

We have never seen a sentence which so well expresses the position which thinking people should take towards any new and specific policy which may be suggested, as the last one quoted above—"to be settled by the public sense of what the public welfare demands," and not by any preconceived ideas of what should or should not be. This is absolutely the only law of progress. Thinking which is willing to be guided by this principle is not radicalism. And less than that is not conservatism, it is stagnation.

THE LAMENT OF UNSATISFIED AMBITION.

At last, at last, merit has been rewarded. The lobby has triumphed. General Miles, the American War God, has been made Lieutenant General. Once again for the ten millionth time will that martial frown decorate a thousand newspapers. Every lace and frill and fancy cloth and gay trapping that it is possible for a United States hero to attain, has been won.

But the mighty spirit of the glory-crowned warrior will not be satisfied. It will weep that other millinery shops may not give up their contents to bedeck his glorious brow, and that no more tawdry streamers may be won to wrap across his manly bosom. "Oh Mars," will be that lamentation, "is your servant a dawg that he must be doomed no more to breath the air of victory or drink the draughts of other gratified ambititions? Shall the ungrateful American plebs create no more regalia to be battled for and won, and—oh, blessed thought—worn by me? Woe, woe, is this proud spirit. Shall not my picture be printed ten thousand times more, and shall my scrap book cease to grow?"

A special elsewhere in this paper tells of the prohibition by certain railroads of the use of cigarettes by their employees. The man who drinks whiskey and has other habits which take the strength and character out of him is being more and more relegated to the rear. The strenuous business of the fast moving modern life needs clear heads and steady hands.

May the happiness which today belongs to the good young Queen of Holland go with her through life, and may her valiant little kingdom always find in her such a Queen as may be loved and revered. She chose her own husband and chose him for love, which is not given to all royal persons to do.

Mrs. Nation's Effective Work.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 6.—Topeka joints were closed today, aside from a few side doors, and the keepers have promised the city and county officials that they will get rid of their stocks of liquors. But tonight they are as wide open as ever. Chief of Police and Sheriff Cook had gone from place to place last night, warning the jointists that they must close their places and keep them closed, and all gave their word that they would sell no more liquor.

Mrs. Nation announces that she has some plans for future action which will make the jointists remember that she is still in the city, but she does not divulge them. She spent most of the day today in visiting the different jails of the city, in praying and talking with the inmates. Some of them sobbed while she shouted to them to live better lives and many of them promised that in the future they would not drink liquor. The Home Defenders, which is the organization formed by Mrs. Nation, held another secret meeting today, to which no one but members with the pass-word were admitted.

The Mill at Staley.

Siler City Messenger.

We are informed the new cotton mill being built at Staley, 8 miles northwest of this place, on the Southern railroad, will soo be completed and it is expected to have all the machinery in place in this mill by early next fall. So far as we know, Mr. W. G. Robertson and Mr. Thomas Davis are the only stockholders, and don't know whether any other parties will be connected with it or not. The company has not yet selected its name.

NO RIGHT TO UGLINESS

The woman who is lovely in face form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at C. E Holton's drug store.

HIS LIFE WAS SAVED.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with typhoid fever that ran into pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all throat and lung trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. Occupations Open to Women.

Within the last 15 years schools have sprung up all over the country for the education of women—education both of a general and a special nature—and now a girl chooses a vocation and fits herself for it with as much care as her brother gives to the preparation for his life work. But these, I believe, are in the main what may be called "new occupations." Fifty years ago there were but seven forms of employment open to women—teaching, needlework, work in cotton mills, keeping boarders, typesetting, bookbinding and household service. To-day there is not a profession or calling, from the ministry, medicine and law to bootblacking, barbering and street cleaning, in which women are not engaged and earning good wages.—Carolyn C. Mumford, in Woman's Home Companion.

SKIN AND LUNGS.

How Closely These Two Possessions of Man Are Related.

That the skin is intimately connected with the lungs is proved by the fact that our minor ills of the respiratory tract—colds, for instance—are almost always traceable to a checking of the perspiration so that the impurities of the blood poison us, says Harvey Sutherland, in Ainslee's. Everybody knows the story about the litle boy that was covered with gold leaf as a cherub for some Roman pomp, and how he died in great agony a few hours afterward. The poisons manufactured by his own organisms slew him, to say nothing of his suffocation. Burns involving more than one-third of the general surface are fatal because the excretory powers of the skin are lessened beyond the abilities of the other depuratory organs to make up for. Varnish an animal and it will die in from six to twelve hours, say some authorities. This incontrovertible fact is matched by another equally incontrovertible, that nobody ever heard of any case of tarring-and-feathering that killed the victim. He might have had all kinds of trouble in geting the stuff off, and he might have felt a certain shock to his pride, but he didn't die that anybody heard of. I never assisted at a ceremony of this kind at either end of the joke, and so I cannot speak as to the completeness with which the body is covered with tar, but from my general knowledge of the people of the west and southwest, where such sports are freely indulged in, I should say that it would most likely be a thorough and comprehensive pigmentation. It may be that the man breathes through the quills of the feathers stuck on, but I doubt it. I should think tar would seal up the pores of the skin quite as effectively as varnish, and it is a paint warranted to wear in all weathers and not to crack or scale off. I went swimming once with a lot of boys when I was young, and there was a tar kettle right by the swimming hole. Well, sir, it was three weeks before—but perhaps we need not go into all that now.

WITH ANIMAL ACTORS.

Troubles of Those Who Have to Put the Dumb Creatures Through Their Parts.

It is to be feared that a new problem of much difficulty confronts the aspiring American dramatist. The threatening trouble lies in the insubordination of animals brought upon the stage to secure a realistic effect, says the Chicago Record. Not long ago a hen thus used in a comic opera performance in Chicago, finding stage life arduous and vain, abruptly decided to leave it, and dashed across the footlights into the parquet. Now comes the report of an intractable lamb, which, instead of playing its part with becoming humility, made for the leading lady with lowered head, and after inflicting slight injuries, proceeded to overturn and smash the stage accessories. It is evident that if these unruly tendencies on the part of the stage animals are to go unchecked a truly realistic play in the future will be attended with peril. Lately there has been quite a demand for the form of histrionic art which presents idyllic views of barn and farm yard. Unless something can be done to restrain the nervous tendencies of the poultry, cows, sheep, horses and other animals in the exhibit, something painful is likely to happen. The excitement which an unruly cow might occasion, for example, were she to become dissatisfied with her role and step over into the orchestra, would be utterly destructive of illusion. The writers interested in elevating the zoological drama should take necessary precautions.

Exploration Proves That Coast Country of Siberia Is Rugged and in Places Almost Mountainous.

Prof. Markgraf reported the results of his exploration of the Yenessei and Ob valleys at the last meeting of the Geographical society. He used gondolas the greater part of the time and traveled an average of 200 kilometers a day. The population of the adjacent country retired into the interior upon his approach.

Prof. Markgraf declared the most important fact established by the exploration, which was undertaken for the purpose of ascertaining the navigable streams of Siberia, was the utter disproof of the commonly accepted notion that the Siberian plain grows more and more flat, as one approaches the northern ocean. He found the exact contrary to be true, the coast country being quite rugged and in places almost mountainous. There are forests of leafy trees to the edge of the sea and Prof. Markgraf believes 2,000,000 boards could easily be got out by water every summer. There is an abundance of fish, and excellent grazing for cattle. There are no roads, of course. Prof. Markgraf thinks the greatest need of this territory is a railway from Archangelsk to Berezoff. It would have a length of something over 800 miles.

A CHANGE OF PURPOSE.

BY THOMAS P. MONTFORT.

WHEN Silas Ryan, the proprietor and manager of Ryan's ranch, set his employes at work fencing in a large body of the best government land in southern Kansas, he stirred up a good-sized hornet's nest and brought the insects buzzing angrily about his head. He had no shadow of right to the land, and naturally the settlers and homeseekers resented his cool appropriation of it to his own use. There were men who wanted it for homes, and who were entitled to it under the laws, and these men looked upon Ryan's conduct as a base infringement on their rights and were not sparing in their denunciation of him and his order.

Near Ryan's ranch there was a little town known as Prairie City. It was an insignificant place, with less than 200 population, but it gave promise of great things in the future. Its inhabitants and the settlers on the prairie about it believed that in time Prairie City would become one of the leading towns of Kansas. Unfortunately, however, the hopes of those people were never to be realized. A railroad was soon after built through that part of the country, and it missed Prairie City by just two miles. The result was a new town on the railroad and the death of the old one. Prairie City went the way of hundreds of other Kansas towns. Its population took up their possessions, including their houses, and moved across the prairie to the railroad.

In Prairie City's halcyon days, however, it boasted of a newspaper, the Prairie City Eagle. It was not much of a paper, being small and poorly printed, but it was quite as good as its patronage justified. Its subscription list was extremely limited and its advertising business was dwarfed to one column of display matter and a few lines of pay locals.

The Eagle, as a matter of course, stood by the town people and the settlers, and when Ryan set his men to fencing in the public lands for grazing purposes it came out with a strong editorial denouncing him in the severest terms. It pronounced his action dishonest, as he was stealing the people's rights. It went further and said that it was the lowest and most contemptible species of dishonesty, since by it he was stealing homes from poor, struggling men and their wives and children, thereby robbing them of a chance to earn an honest living.

"It is the duty of the homeseekers," it went on, "to protect themselves against the encroachments of this greedy cormorant, who, for the sake of adding to his ill-gotten wealth, would starve even the innocent, unconscious, helpless babe in its mother's arms. It is the duty of the settlers to band together, to take the law in their own hands and cut the wire that shuts them out of their own. Tear down the fence, drive off or kill the usurper's cattle and give him to understand that if the government won't protect you you can and will protect yourselves."

A copy of the paper containing this editorial fell into Ryan's hands. He read it and boiled over with wrath and indignation. He was forced to admit that there was much truth in the article, but it was none the more palatable to him for that. He swore vengeance against the Eagle and its editor and vowed that not another issue of the paper should be published.

At dinner time he read the article to his employes as they sat at the table. They were six in number, recently emigrated from a ranch down in Texas, and had a reputation for being the hardest and most reckless daredevils that ever rode the range. When Ryan had finished reading he said:

"What do you think of that?"

"I think it's blamed big crowing from a mighty little rooster," one of the cowboys replied.

"If the settlers want to take that editor's advice and try it on about cutting the wires," another said, "just let them. They'll find before they get through with it that they've got into the hottest and most unhealthy job they ever tackled."

"Then you boys will stand by me?" Ryan questioned.

"Of course we will," one of them answered. "We're paid to work for you, and we've not got any love for settlers. We'll see that your fence is not cut and that your cattle are not bothered."

"That's all right," Ryan said, "but there is something else I want you to do."

"What is it?"

"I want this paper squelched."

"We'll squelch it."

"I want you to ride over to Prairie City to-night and clean the thing out root and branch. Burn the office, smash up the old press and chase the editor out of the country."

"We'll do it."

Just after supper that night the cowboys loaded their pistols carefully and buckled them about their waists. Then they brought out their horses, saddled and mounted them, and rode away in the direction of Prairie City at a mad gallop. Just before they reached the town they came to a halt. One of them said:

"Now, boys, we don't want to take any reckless chances in this business, so we had better be a little cautious. I guess that editor is a spindle-shanked, goggle-eyed old rooster from the east, who'd drop dead at the sight of a pistol, but still he may be a raiment of a different color. For all we know he may turn loose and go to pumping lead into us at the rate of about 60 bullets a minute. It will be safest to kind of slip up on him and take him unawares."

The others agreed to this proposition and accordingly they rode quietly into town, dismounted and tied their horses, and noiselessly approached the Eagle office. A light was shining through a window of the little, one-story box building, and by one common impulse the cowboys stole cautiously forward to this window with a view to peeping into the room to see how the land lay.

On one side of the room they saw a rickety old typestand containing a half-dozen cases of type. On the other side stood an old army press, while in the center there was a zinc-covered goods box which answered in the place of an imposing stone. Up at the end of the room was a small table at which was seated a woman.

The woman's elbow rested on the table, and her face lay between her hands. She was sitting directly in front of the window, apparently looking straight at it, so the cowboys had a good, square view of her features. They saw that she was young and pretty, not much more than a child, and very sad. There was a deeply troubled expression on her face, and once they saw her brush tears from her eyes.

"The editor's wife or daughter, I reckon," one of the cowboys whispered.

"Guess so," one of the others replied; "and like as not the old whelp's been abusing her."

"I'm going in and talk to her," the first speaker announced. "You chaps wait outside till I come back."

"A good idea," another agreed. "We want to see a little more into this business before we do anything rash."

The cowboy walked around to the door and entered the office. He passed across the floor, and stopped just before the little table at which the woman was sitting. He took off his hat, made an awkward bow, and said:

"Good evening, lady. I hope I find you well."

"I am quite well, thank you. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Well, I don't know. I reckon maybe I'd like to see the editor of this paper."

"I am the editor."

"Well, but I want to see the man—your father, or husband, or whoever he is."

"There is no man here. I am all alone."

"You don't mean to say that you are running this paper all by yourself!"

"Yes, sir; except for the help of a boy, who manages the press for me."

The cowboy whistled, then stood staring at the woman in amazement. At last he ejaculated:

"Well, if that don't stump me! A woman running a paper all alone, with no men folks to help her! Gee, but it must be lots of hard work!"

"It is, but I don't mind that. I'd be willing to work night and day if I could just manage some way to keep the paper going."

"You're not figuring to stop it, are you?"

"Yes, I'll have to stop it. I can't get enough money to buy any more paper. My mother is sick, and I have to buy medicine and things for her. Poor mother! I don't know how I shall provide for you now."

The girl's voice trembled, and her eyes filled with tears. The cowboy looked on a moment, then paced rapidly two or three times across the room. Finally he said:

"You wait here for me. I'll be back in a few minutes."

He hurried out to his companions, who were waiting at the door. He drew them away to a safe distance from the office, and then told them all he had discovered. They heard him to the end.

"So that woman," one of them said, "wrote that piece about Ryan."

"She did."

"Then if we kick up a fuss with anybody, it's got to be with her."

"It has."

"In that case, I guess we won't kick up any fuss."

"Not if I can help it. It's all right enough to pile onto a man and squelch him, but it's a different thing when it comes to a poor, lone woman struggling bravely to support her sick mother."

"The paper is going to quit, anyhow," some one remarked, "so it's all right to let it alone. It can't do any more damage."

The man who had come from the room was silent and thoughtful for a moment, then he said:

"I reckon the paper's not going to quit, either. I've got money enough to tide it over a few weeks, and—"

"I've got enough to tide it over a few more weeks," another said, and he was promptly followed by the others with like propositions. The upshot of it all was that a minute later a roll of money was put into the girl's hands, and before she had recovered from her astonishment the cowboys were on their way back to the ranch.

"Wonder what Ryan will think!" one of them remarked as they rode along.

"Don't matter what he thinks," another replied. "We don't hire to him to make war on women."

Thanks to the aid given by the cowboys, the Eagle lived; and when Prairie City moved to the new town the Eagle went with it, and there it grew and prospered, and in time became a prominent paper. But its editor never knew the true object of the night's visit that was paid her by the cowboys of Ryan's ranch. Whether she would have thought any the less of them if she had known is a matter of doubt.

Naturally Ryan was displeased with the action of his employes, the more especially since the Eagle kept up its fight on him. But there was nothing he could do save submit, since he had contracted with his employes for a year, and he could not discharge them for refusing to do an unlawful act. He was entirely helpless, and when the settlers cut his fence and took up claims on his ranch, he had to quietly give way to them and seek grazing lands elsewhere.—Detroit Free Press.

FOUND MANY RARE SPECIMENS

Prof. Millspaugh Tells of His Visit to the Island of Jamaica.

Prof. Millspaugh, curator of botany in the Field Columbian museum and a professor in the University of Chicago, returned the other day from a six weeks' stay in Jamaica, where he collected flora and studied methods of raising and exporting tropical fruits. Specimens for the museum and information for a course of lectures on the banana industry prompted the trip. He said:

"I have brought back 500 specimens, many of which are very rare. By far the most wonderful thing about Jamaica is its banana industry. The culture, growing, gathering and transportation has been brought almost to a state of perfection. Banana raising is the chief occupation, and few oranges or other fruits are expected. The whole northern portion of the island is controlled by the United Fruit company, an American firm. This company contracts for the whole crop raised by the island farmers. It owns 62 fast steamships. From seven to ten ship loads leave the island every week, carrying 250,000 bunches of bananas. Most of the labor is done by the descendants of former slaves or by coolies brought from India."

Dr. Millspaugh visited St. Margarets, Kingston, Bowden and Port Morant.

SIMILAR TO TUSKEGEE SCHOOL

Industrial Institution for the Colored Youth of Southern Illinois.

The colored people of southern Illinois are much elated over the probably successful culmination of a plan which has been under consideration for several months to build an industrial and mechanical school modeled as far as possible after the Tuskegee (Ala.) colored school, of which Booker T. Washington is president.

The scheme took form several months ago, when an organization was perfected known as the Cuba Libre Industrial association, having for its president Prof. J. D. Alston, of Eldorado, a noted colored teacher. A large fund has been secured, sufficient to warrant the beginning of the work.

The first board of directors of the new school is called to meet on January 2 next to purchase land and draw up specifications for the building. It is understood that Prof. Washington has interested himself in the scheme.

The institution is to be located at Eldorado, and will be open to colored students in the central Mississippi states, and will be supported, besides popular subscriptions, by an endowment fund which is now being pledged.

GIRL TRIPLETS IN SOCIETY.

Three Handsome Young Women, Who Look, Act and Dress Alike, the Latest Society Puzzle.

Miss Edith Cryder, Miss Ethel Cryder and Miss Elsie Cryder, triplets, who were 18 on December 1, were introduced to New York society the other afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Cryder giving a dinner at their home, 43 West Ninth street, for their daughters. Twenty-six young people were the guests. The Misses Cryder are so strikingly similar in appearance that only their family and most intimate friends can tell them apart. For this reason when they appear in public each wears a ribbon around her neck that is distinctive in color. Otherwise their dress is identical.

New Motor for Automobiles.

A new electric motor for automobiles has been devised which restores energy to the storage battery when the vehicle is running down hill.

Canada's Population.

Canada expects a population of 6,000,000 in its census returns next year.

Agriculture in Alaska.

The chilly experiences of gold-seekers in Alaska are hardly calculated to make one think of that country as a good field for agricultural enterprise, but in fact our agricultural department thinks so well of the farming possibilities of Alaska that experiment stations have been placed at Sitka and Kenai, and headquarters are to be established for similar work in the interior.—Youth's Companion.

The question of employing swallows instead of pigeons to carry dispatches has been seriously considered in France. The aptitude of the swallow for the work is by many held to be even greater than that of the pigeon.

NEW UNIFORM FOR TOMMY.

British Soldiers Will Soon Be Provided with Fawn-Colored Serge Suits.

It is probable that in a very brief period there will be considerable changes made in the material used for clothing the army on home as well as on foreign service, says the London Telegraph. The committee dealing with the subject, which has been in session for about a couple of years, has at length been able to come to a final decision. Probably the events in South Africa have helped the members to make up their minds. At all events they have chosen an excellent woolen serge-like material in which for the future practically the whole work of the troops will be performed. It is not khaki-colored, though that well-known and serviceable hue is somewhat closely approached. Trousers will not be made from exactly the same material as the jacket, but of one somewhat rougher and thicker in texture. The new material is of a yellowish-fawn color and is of excellent quality. It was selected from a great number of samples submitted to the committee and has been approved by the war office. Two other materials of the same tint, but of rather stronger texture, have been selected for the mounted branches, and a stout Bedford cord of the same color will be used for riding breeches. No regulation dealing with the new clothing has yet been issued, but one may be expected shortly, and from thenceforward uniforms made of the new cloth will supersede the serges and dark cloth trousers now worn for drill and field work, both at home and abroad. The same pattern of jacket will be used for all branches of the service, but each unit will wear a distinguishing badge on the cap and shoulder strap.

It is not, however, intended that the new clothing shall entirely supersede the old style of dress. The tunic is to be worn for full dress, so that on full-dress parades the familiar blue and scarlet and black will still greet the eye. Of course, it will be a considerable time yet before the uniform will be ready, but it is probable that the spring issue of clothing to the troops will include the new suit. It will be more handsome than khaki, while it will be far more comfortable and serviceable, and so far as experiments go to show it will possess equal invisibility. It is to be hoped that a suitable headdress may soon be devised for the army. The helmets worn by the regular troops in South Africa are excellent and greatly superior to the much-vaunted "smasher" felt hat, but they are hardly suitable for home wear. A peaked cap of the new cloth, picked out with scarlet lines and made somewhat approaching the Russian pattern, would look very smart and be suitable for general wear. At all events the ridiculous forage and field service caps should be relegated to the museums, along with the blue and scarlet serges now about to be superseded by the new uniform.

YOUNG KRUGER IS A HERO.

Grandnephew of the Boer Ex-President Saved a Starving Sheep.

An English clergyman has had the extreme hardihood of relating an anecdote in a Dublin paper that reflects great credit upon a near relative, a grandnephew, of England's arch enemy, Paul Kruger. He was staying at Glondalough with two friends and while boating on the upper lake, under Camaderry mountain, noticed a sheep pitifully bleating on a ledge about 1,000 feet up the sheer cliff. The animal had been there for days and was in a state of semi-starvation. The peasants about had resolved to shoot it and thus end its misery. Young Kruger however, essayed its rescue. He tied a piece of tarred twine round the sole of his boots and climbed up the face of the precipice, much to the anxiety of his friends. The operation took him quite two hours, during which the slightest unsteadiness or wavering would have cost him his life. Halfway up he shouted down that he could not move further. With a final effort, however, he gradually worked his way up, reached the animal and lowered it cautiously until he regained the boat. His intrepid act excited intense admiration among the spectators. His task seemed utterly impossible and in any event was attended with terrible danger. Young Kruger was at the time a medical student at Edinburgh university and on the declaration of war sailed for South Africa.

All Were Safe.

An earthquake, lately, in Caracas, Venezuela, borught ruin and terror. The city was in a state of chaos for days. The keeper of the jail, which always has inmates confined there for political offenses, issued the following notice, which ought to have amused as well as reassured those who read it: "To the public: I have the satisfaction to inform the families of those who are detained here that this morning's earthquake has happily caused no accident within this establishment."

A period of 44 years is sufficient to determine the success or failure of a business. The W. W. KIMBALL COMPANY was established in 1856. Since that time they have manufactured and sold about sixty-six thousand pianos and about two hundred and twenty thousand organs. The factories have been enlarged from time to time until they are now twice the size of any piano and organ factory in the world. Kimball Pianos and Organs are the very highest possible standard. They are celebrated throughout the musical world for their wonderful depth, brilliancy and purity of tone, their great strength of construction and durability—making them the special favorites with all the great musicians and musical instructors throughout the country as seen by the hundreds of endorsements and many gold medals awarded in competition with other makes. Kimball Pianos and Organs are sold direct from their large factories at one small factory profit. They are fully guaranteed. We shall be glad to hear from any one desiring a strictly first-class instrument.
